Elizabeth Rust is a Senior Economist at Keybridge, where she advises private sector firms, industry associations, and government clients on macroeconomic trends, economic policy, and organization strategy. She leads research in areas including macroeconomic analysis and forecasting; economic policy; energy, financial, and commodities markets; and geopolitical risk. Rust speaks regularly to business and professional audiences on the global economic outlook, industry-level outlooks, and emerging economic trends. Prior to joining Keybridge, she worked at The Conference Board's Europe office and the Bologna Institute for Policy Research as a researcher in international and European political economy, as well as the Club de Madrid, a development NGO. She holds a Master's degree in International Economics and European Studies from Johns Hopkins University (SAIS) and a Bachelor's degree, magna cum laude, from Cornell University.
